Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month: Moving from Terror to Hope & Healing

Joyce Kirkland
Youth and Family Services Coordinator
Dove Domestic Violence Program

February is Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month, which always makes me sad. When I think of teens, I conjure up positive images of school, college applications, music and fashion, earning a driver's license, crazy fun with friends, mood swings, that first crush, and steady growth into independence and adulthood - NOT violence and fear. However, for many teens, dating violence is a terrifying reality.

The statistics are staggering. According to Love Is Respect, the National Teen Dating Violence Helpline, 1.5 million high school students experience physical abuse from a dating partner every year. One in three adolescents in the U. S. is a victim of physical, sexual, emotional or verbal abuse from a dating partner. Use of technology to coerce, stalk, and blackmail teen partners is increasingly common in abusive teen relationships. Girls and young women between the ages of 16 and 24 experience the highest rates of intimate partner violence – almost triple the national average. Victims of teen dating violence are at higher risk for substance abuse, eating disorders, risky sexual behavior, pregnancy, sexually transmitted infections, additional domestic violence, and suicide, compared to girls and boys who are not abused. Tragically, most teens who experience intimate partner violence

Letter from the Executive Director of Dove, Inc.:

Coordinating Efforts to Address Unmet Needs and Social Injustices.

Christine Gregory, Executive Director

Dear Friends,

What are today's unmet needs? This is a question we hope to constantly ask and act on here at Dove, Inc. This month I'd like to highlight the grim reality of human trafficking in our community. Human Trafficking is the use of force, fraud, or coercion to obtain something of commercial value such as housing, labor, or commercial sex act. Locally we see examples every day in our various programs. Individuals are coerced into panhandling, drug sales, giving up their link or medical cards, having their credit used and damaged.

Many people think of trafficking as moving people far away in order to exploit them, in reality most people locally are trafficked in the same neighborhoods they grew up in, or within a few miles. Trafficking is exploitation and does not require movement across city, county, state or national borders. What it does require is the use of power and control. In short Human Trafficking is one form of Domestic Violence.

Dove is working through our many programs to help victims of exploitation. We are reaching out to help victims know that our resources are here to help. We are connecting those who come forward with confidential services including counseling, housing options, shelter, financial and legal assistance. We are advocating in the community for additional housing units so there is never a person who feels that they have no other option. We are sending the message, "You are not alone, you do not have to live like this, we can help."

If you or anyone you know is being exploited, I urge you to help them either contact Dove through our Domestic Violence Program 217.423.2238 or reach out to Homeward Bound 217.362.7700, after hours 217.619.5742 to connect to the Macon County Coordinated Entry System for housing resources. Dove, Inc. is only as strong as its member organizations, volunteers, and advocates. It is my sincere hope that you will be a part of making our home a community free of human trafficking.

Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month: Moving from Terror to Hope & Healing

never tell anyone – only 33% tell a family member or friend. Parents and friends might see warning signs of abuse, but often feel helpless to protect the teen.

The good news is that Dove Domestic Violence Program offers help and hope to teen dating violence victims and their families. Dove provides prevention education in schools throughout DeWitt, Macon, Moultrie, Piatt, and Shelby counties, reaching teens with information on healthy relationships, teaching them the warning signs of an abuser, and informing them of their legal rights and of how to get help for themselves or a friend. Dove provides crisis intervention for teens in abusive relationships, including assistance with orders of protection. (In Illinois, an adult may seek an order of protection on behalf of a minor under the age of 18. In most teen dating violence cases, parents or guardians seek the OP on behalf of their teen.) Individual and family counseling is available to help teens and their parents do safety planning and cope with the danger, emotional trauma, and family disruption that occurs during and after an abusive relationship. Dove's hotline is the best way to access or inquire about services, 423.2238. The hotline and all other Dove services are completely confidential.

There are simple things we all can do to address teen dating violence:

- If you are a parent, model a loving and respectful relationship at home – your children and teens are watching and learning from you. Talk to your teens about important issues and let them know that you are always there when they need to talk. If your teen comes to you with relationship concerns, take them seriously – abusive teen relationships can be dangerous. If your daughter or son is being abused, believe her/him, know that this is not your teen's fault, and seek help - contact Dove's hotline, 423.2238. Dove staff can discuss options with you and assist with orders of protection, counseling, and other services. (If the situation is an emergency, call 911 first and contact Dove for follow-up assistance.)
- If you are a teen whose partner is abusive, TELL SOMEONE! Make sure your friends know what is happening, but more importantly, tell a trusted adult, like Mom or Dad, a counselor or favorite teacher at school – someone who can seek help for you. You deserve to be treated with respect – an abusive relationship is not your fault and is never acceptable!
- If you are a concerned friend or relative, talk to the teen.

Although your offer of help may be rejected at first, you have planted a seed of information and hope; the teen may reach out to you later for help.

- If you want to know more about teen dating violence or to schedule prevention education for a class or youth organization, call Dove's hotline at 423.2238.

Teen dating violence is something that no teen should experience. However, Dove's prevention education and crisis intervention services ensure that information, help, hope, and healing are available for all teens.

Volunteer Opportunities

Meet Deb Hoffman!

Deb came on board with the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program in November 2017. She is the new DeWitt County Coordinator temporarily while Sheryl Whisman is on leave.

Deb has been busy training and learning the ropes with Charlie both in the Decatur and Clinton office. Deb's office hours once she has completed training will be Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Deb comes to us after retiring from Warner Hospital and Health Services, Physical Therapy Department, where she spent 25 years serving in the position of office manager for the department. Deb has two grown sons, two grandchildren, and five great-grand children who live in Australia. Her hobbies include sewing and crafts and Deb lives in Clinton.

Be on the look out in our weekly update for the Open House where you can come by and meet her in person at the Clinton office and chat with her. We are excited to have her with us.

Central Illinois Christians in Mission

Central Illinois Christians in Mission (CICIM) is looking for a volunteer who is able to dedicate some time to learning and building small, three drawer IKEA dressers for children, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, during open hours. CICIM staff are happy to show you how. Give Charlie or Sandy a call if you are handy and want to do something for children receiving beds from CICIM.

Habitat for Humanity

Habitat for Humanity needs volunteers at the ReStore, 932 E. Wood, Decatur. Give Charlie or Sandy a call at 428.6616 for specific job descriptions.

Senior Olympics

Have you heard Senior Olympics is happening in Decatur in April? Look for more information soon! This is a fantastic opportunity to show off some skills and earn a medal (and perhaps some bragging rights too) for those 50 years or better. Not interested in participating in events? That's OK as there will be plenty of volunteer opportunities to help participants the day of events. Call Charlie or Sandy for more information at 428.6616.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service

Thank you to all who helped collect supplies for Sarah Pritts (Garfield Montessori) and Laurie Tolbert's (Lincoln Elementary) classrooms as part of our MLK Day of Service. Both teachers received numerous items from their wish lists and were excited and honored to receive these much-appreciated items. Staff got to visit with the students in Ms. Pritts class and they were amazing! The students knew all the facts we came prepared to share! Fantastic group of children. Thanks again for helping to make MLK a "day on not off!"

"I would like to thank you and your RSVP volunteers for the items that were so generously given to me for my classroom. I appreciate it so much and feel honored that I was chosen.

Thank you so much!"
